OBITUARIES

1956-1969

Compiled by
Mrs. Elizabeth Hogg Ironmonger

Jan 5, 1956
Mrs. Woodroof,
Mother Of Mrs.
P. W. Hiden, Dies

Mrs. Susan Josephine Graves Woodroof, 103, died at 11:30 last night after about five years' illness. Death occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Philip W. Hiden, 5600 Huntington Ave., Newport News.

No funeral arrangements had been made last night.

Mrs. Woodroof was born Sept. 7, 1852, in Arlington County. She was a daughter of Capt. William Crittenden Graves and Mrs. Martha Ann Hiden Graves. She was the widow of Capt. Jesse Alphonso Woodroof of Bedford County.

Most of Mrs. Woodroof's married life was spent in Bedford County. After Mr. Woodroof's death June 23, 1915, she returned to her old home. A few years ago she came to Newport News to reside with Mrs. Hiden.

She was a member of the Baptist Church at Barboursville.

Surviving are the one daughter, Mrs. Hiden; four granddaughters—Mrs. Wendell Hussey of Newport News, Mrs. James P. McMurren of Orange County, Miss Georgia Hiden of New York City, and Mrs. Mayo Fitzhugh Jr. of Falls Church.

Mrs. Betty Amory
Of Grafton Dies 1956

Grafton, April 18—Mrs. Betty Amory, 88, of Grafton, died at 9:45 this morning in Riverside Hospital after a long illness. She was the widow of Leroy B. Amory who died in 1946. Apr 18

She is survived by four sons, W. W. Amory and E. E. Amory, both of Grafton, Milburn Amory of Hampton, and Dr. G. C. Amory of Warwick; three daughters, Mrs. Thomas J. White of Hampton, Mrs. Clarence O. Green of Yorktown and Mrs. Nelson C. Moore of Detroit, Mich.; a sister, Mrs. Martha Elliott of Tabb; a brother, W. T. Wray of Jacksonville, Fla.; 18 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

The body may be viewed at the home in Grafton between 1:30 and 3 P. M. tomorrow. Funeral services will be held at 3 P. M. at the Grafton Christian Church, with the Rev. Robert B. Marriott, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Peninsula Memorial Park.

The pallbearers are Guy C. Amory Jr. of Warwick, David E. Amory of Grafton, John F. Hunt and Gerald W. Hunt of Poquoson, William T. Green of Dayton, Ohio, I. Leake Wornom Jr. of Newport News, Roland R. Rollins of Hopewell and Julian Mann of Raleigh, N. C.

J. A. Montgomery
Dies In Florida

Seaford, April 30—Joseph Allen Montgomery, 39, a former Seaford resident, died at his home in Tampa, Fla., today.

Mr. Montgomery was born in Seaford in York County and was a member of Trinity Methodist Church in Poquoson. He moved to Tampa nine years ago.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Susanne M. Mann of Poquoson; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Montgomery of Seaford; two brothers, Clarence T. Montgomery of Washington and John Wade Montgomery of Seaford; and two uncles, a niece and two nephews.

The body will be sent to Seaford for burial with arrangements to be announced.

Last Rites Sunday
For J. A. Montgomery

Seaford, May 4—Funeral services for Joseph Allen Montgomery of Seaford who died in Tampa, Fla., Thursday, will be held at 2 P. M. Sunday in the Zion Methodist Church in Seaford.

The Rev. Oscar Good, pastor of the church, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. John T. Mills.

Survivors include his parents Mr. and Mrs. Ollie P. Montgomery of Seaford; two brothers, Clarence T. Montgomery of Washington, D. C. and John Wade Montgomery of Seaford; two daughters, Mrs. Suzanne M. Mann of Poquoson and Miss Stephanie Marie Montgomery of Burbank, Calif.

The body will be placed in the church at 1 P. M. Sunday before the services.

Active pallbearers will be Randolph Montgomery, Russell Joyner, Roland Montgomery, Charles Stafford Hornsby, Moss Callis and John Crockett.

Burial will be in the church cemetery with military honors at the graveside.

Mrs. N. D. Hogge
Dies In Hospital 1956

Hornsbyville, May 28. — Mrs. Nettie D. Hogge, 54, died at 10:30 A. M. today in Mary Immaculate Hospital, Newport News, after a brief illness. 1956

She was a life-long resident of York County and a member of the Providence Methodist Church of Dare and the woman's auxiliary of Dundy Chapel.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. John Erdman, of Hornsbyville; three sons, W. E. Hogge Sr., of Tabb, James G. Hogge, of Hampton, and Thomas J. Hogge of Hornsbyville; a sister, Mrs. Grace Herman of Warwick; a brother, W. L. Davis of Grafton and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be at 2:30 P. M. Wednesday at Providence Methodist Church. The Rev. R. B. Proctor, pastor, will officiate.

The body will be placed in the church an hour and a half before services. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Active pallbearers will be Calvin Green, J. E. Burcher, R. B. Presson, Leslie Dawson, Enoch Belvin, Holland Riggins, W. E. Moore and Travis Crockett.

RAYMOND E. WORNOM

May 16 1956
York Youth
Dies, Victim Of Cancer

Dare, May 16—Raymond Eugene Wornom, 19, a former York High School athlete, died last night in Dixie Hospital, Hampton, following a lengthy illness. The youth had been stricken with cancer.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith Wornom; two brothers, John Franklin Wornom and Paul Benton Wornom and one sister, Jane Elizabeth, all of Dare; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Martin of Poquoson and one nephew.

THOMAS H. WILSON

T. H. Wilson, 88, Dies; Set Rites Friday

Hampton's oldest businessman and member of the Masonic order, Thomas Hardy Wilson, 88, died in his home at 1102 North Armistead Ave. at 9:15 a.m. yesterday.

Mr. Wilson was president of the firm of T. H. Wilson Co., Inc., a business he founded 68 years ago. He had remained the head of the business and was active until last Summer when his health began to decline. Death was attributed to a ailment.

Born in York County Dec. 12, 1868, the son of the late Robert E. and Sarah Wornom Wilson, he was one of 15 children. He attended York County schools and moved to Hampton, settling on Harris Creek, as a young man. He married Miss Bettie Ann Hogge in 1888. She died in 1935.

Mr. Wilson first opened a grocery store in Hampton in 1888 and later changed to a feed, fuel and seed operation. It has been augmented and enlarged over the years and presently is housed at 732 North King St.

A member of Central Methodist Church, Hampton, he also was a life member of St. Tammany Lodge No. 5, AF&AM, and is believed to have been the oldest Mason on the Peninsula.

For years he was a director in the First National Bank of Hampton which was absorbed by the Citizens National Bank and retained his seat as a director. A brother, the late Robert E. Wilson, was Hampton clerk of court for several years.

Mr. Wilson was the father of seven children, three of whom are living. One, Dr. Jesse T. Wilson, was a veterinarian.

Surviving are two sons, Taylor C. Wilson, who now manages the business, and Victor P. Wilson, a former senator; daughter, Mrs. Gordon Hudgins; two sisters, Mrs. W. C. Wornom and Mrs. W. A. James, both of Hampton; four brothers, Vernon Wilson, Whittier Wilson, Grover Wilson and Carl Wilson, all of Hampton; five grandchildren, and 10 great-grandchildren.

Mar. 1, MRS. P. W. HIDEN 1959

Mrs. P. W. Hiden Dies; Civic, Cultural Leader

Mrs. Martha Woodroof Hiden, 75, one of the foremost business women of Virginia, sole owner and proprietor of the Hiden Storage and Forwarding Company died at 4:45 p.m. Saturday at her home, 5600 Huntington Ave., Newport News, after an illness of several months.

She was the widow of Philip W. Hiden, first mayor of the City of Newport News under the manager form of government. Following the death of her husband in 1936, Mrs. Hiden succeeded him as the head of the business which he owned and operated. She had been a resident of Newport News more than 50 years.

In addition to her business interests, Mrs. Hiden was widely known as an authority on early colonial Virginia history and genealogy, and was an author of note in these fields. In many years she took an active part in the restoration of the old county court records and personally coordinated the work leading to the preservation of the important early documents.

Mrs. Hiden was a member of the Board of Visitors of the College of William and Mary, having been appointed in 1952. She served since 1950 on the Executive Committee of the Virginia Historical Society and for twenty years from 1932 to 1952 she was a member of the Virginia State Library Board. She served as chairman of the board of trustees of Newport News Public Library Inc., 1927-1952 and presently was chairman emeritus of the board.

During World War II she headed the Woman's Division of the Newport News - Warwick County War Finance Committee, was a member of the History Commission, World War II, of the City of Newport News and also was director of the Hospitality House.

Mrs. Hiden was one of the associates in the Jamestown Corporation, serving as president of that body in 1951. She took an active interest in the promotion of the historical dramas, "The Common Glory" and "The Founders." As president of the Order of First Families of Virginia and fellow of the American Society of Genealogists, she was widely known outside of Virginia for her knowledge of the earliest of Virginia families and engaged in extensive correspondence with genealogical authorities in America and in England. Her membership in many patriotic organizations brought her in contact with members of these organizations from all parts of the United States.

As chairman of the records preservation committee of the Society of Colonial Dames in the State of Virginia, Mrs. Hiden sup-

The life of Martha Woodroof Hiden was so full of interest and achievement that it would be difficult to point to any particular phase of it and say that this or that marked the high point of her career as wife, mother, business woman and loyal citizen of the community in which she lived, and the state of Virginia to which she rendered noteworthy service. However, to her close friends and associates her long years of devoted work in the restoration of the almost forgotten ancient county court records, oftentimes lying in decay, are among the many memorable contributions she made.

The mere matter of coordinating the various angles to rescue these records from their state of deterioration was a real task. Yet she accomplished the work with no friction whatsoever. Over a twenty-odd year period she personally traveled thousands of miles to accomplish the objective. That obligation, which she so patiently assumed when there was not only lack of interest, but oftentimes actual opposition, now is recognized as essential in the preservation of the record of Virginia's past, so vitally a part of the nation's early history.

While engaged in this important undertaking, Mrs. Hiden pursued with abiding purpose the accounts of Virginia's early settlement and the families who so valiantly sustained the struggling colony. Compiling the data in written form, she made available to others her findings. Her accomplishments she was generous in withholding what she had acquired through diligent study. But she was, on the other hand, anxious to share her ledger with persons of serious interest.

In her busy life of many face day was an ordered one. She arose was prompt in all of her obligations never hurried. With a keen sense of responsibility in all of her undertakings she expected the same of others—her and her associates. Problems and difficulties were never obstacles to her, but steps to be overcome in objective friend or associate ever came to her as a problem but that he or she received some helpful suggestion towards solving it.

And yet, Martha Hiden accepted inevitable when the great command came. Three times before that command to her, she had heard the call. Her courageous outlook, she was never overwhelmed, but on the other hand, she challenged to shoulder the burden and carry on the work of those who had been summoned to the Beyond. That she had been able to render service as she had through life was to her The Reward.

Under her leadership as president of the Library Board in 1927, negotiations were begun with the city government looking towards the erection of the present Library building on West Avenue. The building was authorized in 1928 and completed in 1929. A vast growth in library patronage and in accessions during her tenure of office was noted.

Mrs. Hiden's only son, the late Lieut. Philip Wallace Hiden Jr. was killed in action while on a flying mission over Germany, March, 1944. While missing he was awarded the Air Medal "for exceptionally meritorious achievement while participating in five separate bomber combat missions over enemy occupied continental Europe."

Mrs. Hiden was the daughter and only child of the late Jesse Alphonso Woodroof and Susan Graves Woodroof of Bedford where the family maintained a large farm for many years. Her girlhood days were spent there and at her mother's old family home Oak Grove Farm in Orange County.

The surviving children of Mrs. Hiden are: Mrs. Wendell H. Hussey of Merry Point, Newport News, Mrs. Joseph P. McMurren of Oak Grove Farm, Orange County, Miss Georgia Goodwin Hiden, presently ballet mistress of the Vienna Opera, Vienna, Austria, and Mrs. Mayo McGill FitzHugh of San Diego, Calif. Surviving grandchildren are: Susan Hiden McMurren, Mayo McGill FitzHugh III, Philip Wallace Hiden FitzHugh, Cary Grayson FitzHugh, Woodroof Graves FitzHugh.

The Deepest Tenderness!

By RUTH AND FURNELL BAILEY 1959.

Saturday, June 18, 1959 the South lost a great friend! That friend was Mrs. Orina Kidd Garber, the wife of Bishop Paul Neff Garber, the presiding Bishop of the Methodist Church in Virginia and North Carolina. One cannot think of her and her constant companionship with her husband without remembering the words of the novelist, Dinah Maria Mulock: "The deepest tenderness a woman can show to a man, is to help him to do his duty."

In the most profound sense, Mrs. Garber had this "deepest tenderness." The marvelous history of progress in the Methodist Churches in Virginia and North Carolina under the leadership of Bishop and Mrs. Garber since 1950 is almost unparalleled in the church. In many respects the church has doubled its strength in nine years. Mrs. Garber traveled day in and day out with her husband as he carried the duties of heavy and responsible leadership. She was a constant and encouraging companion, indeed! How nobly did she fulfill the tribute: "The deepest tenderness a woman can show to man, is to help him to do his duty."

In a conversation with Mrs. Garber on one occasion she commended the statement of Matthew Henry, which is an insight into her own life: "Woman was taken out of man; not out of his head, to top him, nor out of his feet to be trampled underfoot; but out of his side to be equal to him, under his arm to be protected, and near his heart to be loved." In a unique sense she bore that relationship to her distinguished husband, and in her tenderness was an inspiration to him as he gave himself to the duty the church had conferred upon him!

It was my privilege to be her pastor. She loved the truth, and was one of the most honest persons I have ever known. She was forthright, and never dodged an issue. She had convictions and she expressed them, and she was respected among friends for the manner in which she defended all that she believed.

Those who knew her intimately can testify to the warmth of her love. We shall never forget her thoughtfulness and her gifts when our fourth daughter was born, and her thoughtfulness of invitation to her home on special occasions. She had the capacity never to forget a friend!

The last thing I did before leaving Richmond for the annual conference of our church in Norfolk in June was to go by the hospital to see Mrs. Garber. She looked at me, and in her forthright manner said, "My doctor is a Baptist. He doesn't understand how important an annual conference is in the Methodist Church or he would never have me in this hospital." She knew her place was by the side of her husband, and she did not even wish to be in the hospital, though ill, when she could help her husband with his responsibilities. "The deepest tenderness a woman can show to a man, is to help him do his duty!"

My grandfather, a consecrated Christian, used to say to me: "The passing of a great character is like cutting down a great tree in the forest; we are overwhelmed by the vastness of the sky we could not see before." How true that is in the life of this great woman. There is a vastness of the sky where she stood. She will be missed in the deepest sense, especially by those who coveted her friendship and profited from her insights.

A woman of forthright convictions, a lover of the truth, a devoted friend, a Christian of great love, a servant of the Church, a constant and loving companion of her husband—Mrs. Paul Neff Garber was all of this and more. The greatest understanding of her nature, however, may well be in these words: "The deepest tenderness a woman can show a man, is to help him do his duty!"

W. W. Peele, N. C. Church Leader, Dies

July 1, 1959
LAURINBURG, N.C. (AP)—

William Walter Peele, who rose from a North Carolina cotton farm and became a Methodist bishop and president of the Church's Council of Bishops, died in retirement near his birthplace Wednesday. He was 78.

Bishop Peele had retired because of ailing health from official duties in June of 1952 and moved with his wife to an unpretentious home they had built in the late 1940s three miles west of Laurinburg.

His health restored, he had visited friends Tuesday night. Mrs. Peele discovered that he had died in sleep Wednesday morning.

The general conference of 1938 made him a bishop and placed him in charge of Methodist Churches in Virginia and Eastern North Carolina with headquarters in Richmond.

He was the fourth of 10 children born to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Peele on a farm near the Scotland County hamlet of Gibson. He never ceased to marvel at the ability of his parents to send eight of the children through college on the meagre resources they gained from their 60-acre farm. Four sons became preachers, one a lawyer, one a teacher, and one daughter became a missionary to China.

As a preacher, he served some of North Carolina's largest pulpits—at Edenton Street Church at Raleigh, at Trinity Church at Durham, and at Charlotte's First Methodist Church, and as district superintendent of the Greensboro District.

Earlier he had served as president of Rutherford College, a church junior college in Burke County, and had taught and served as acting dean of his alma mater, Trinity College (now Duke University). In World War I he attended officers training school at Plattsburg, N. Y.

In retirement he had become a familiar figure—half, bespectacled, medium-sized and good humored—in his native county. He substituted in many pulpits, spoke frequently at public gatherings, hobnobbed with townsfolk and farmers, and occasionally fished. The Peeles had no children.

Funeral services will be held at First Methodist Church here Friday at 10 a. m. Bishop Paul N. Garber of Richmond will officiate and will be assisted by the Rev. H. G. Ruark of Laurinburg and the Rev. Grady Kinley of Gibson.

July 1, 1959 Mrs. Annie Watkins Dies After Illness

Edgar Guest,
'Plain Folks'
Poet, 78, Dies

DETROIT — Edgar A. Guest, the newspaper poet who wrote verses that plain people liked died in his sleep at his home here early Wednesday. He would have been 78 on Aug. 20.

He apparently suffered a cerebral stroke.

Often called the poet of the plain people, Guest wrote rhymes for half a century for the Detroit Free Press. His verses were syndicated and at the peak of his popularity appeared in 300 newspapers.

Guest wrote with a love of little things of life. One of his most frequently quoted poems started with the line: "It takes a heap o' livin' in a house to make it home."

In dashing out verses for daily publication, Guest never pretended to be a great poet. He preferred to be called a newspaperman.

He had been in ill health in recent years. Nevertheless, his poems appeared regularly in the Free Press and other newspapers up to the time of his death.

Born in Birmingham, England, in 1881, Guest came to Detroit at the age of 10 and became an American citizen at 21. He began writing poetry while working on the editorial desk of the Free Press. His verses caught on with the public and soon he was assigned to do nothing else but write poetry.

Guest's first commercial published book was "A Heap o' Livin'", which appeared in 1918. It ran through more than 30 editions and about 500,000 copies.

Guest leaves a son, Edgar A. Jr., who is widely known in the Michigan area as the philosophic master of ceremonies on a radio variety program. He also leaves a daughter, Janet. His wife, Ellen, died in 1945.

Funeral services will be held in Detroit at 11 a.m. Friday. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery.

She was a member of the Grafton Christian Church, King's Daughters Auxiliary and the Daughters of American Revolution.

Survivors are three sons, Jourdan M. Burke of Highland, Calif., Allen G. Burke of Grafton and John W. Burke of Newport News, and a grandson, Jourdan M. Burke Jr. of Florida.

Graveside services will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. Thursday at Elmwood Cemetery, Norfolk.

Ex-Del. Wright, 67, Dies At Home In Tappahannock

TAPPAHANNOCK — William A. Wright, 67, long-time ex-state legislator and former State Conservation Commissioner, died here Friday.

Wright also served as a member of the State Highway Commission, from which post he resigned in 1958 because of ill health.

He entered the House of Delegates in 1924, representing King and Queen, Middlesex and Essex Counties for eight years. He began a 10-year career in the State Senate in 1932, representing Essex, King and Queen, Middlesex, Gloucester, Mathews and York Counties.

In 1942 he gave up his Senate seat to accept Gov. Darden's appointment at State Conservation Commissioner. He held the post under two other governors and resigned in 1950 to make an unsuccessful run for Congress from the First District.

He was instrumental, as State Conservation Commissioner, in re-writing many state laws on conservation.

Wright began practicing law in Tappahannock in 1916. He served with the infantry in World War I.

He was a former president of the Jamestown Commission.

Survivors include the widow Mrs. Ann Scott Taylor Wright; a brother, Preston Wright of Fredericksburg, and a sister, Mrs. Della Meade of Boyce.

William A. Wright-Useful Virginian 1959

Former State Senator William A. Wright of Tappahannock, whose death occurred Friday, was a Virginian whose contributions to the State for over three decades have not had the glare of the public spotlight. They were substantial, nevertheless. Mr. Wright's death on the eve, almost, of his 68th birthday brought to a close a life that had been lived in many official capacities. His political career started with eight years in the House of Delegates, representing King and Queen, Middlesex, and Essex Counties. This was followed by a ten-year service in the State Senate, representing the three counties of his former House seat and in addition Gloucester, Mathews, and York Counties.

But his better known service was as State conservation commissioner under appointment of then Governor Colgate W. Darden. He continued under two other governors to 1950, when he resigned to run for Congress but in a losing fight. His final service was as a member of the State Highway Commission, from which he resigned because of ill health.

As commissioner and with the background of a circuit judge father and his own law career, he succeeded in getting on the statute books some most beneficial conservation laws—especially in forestry. And he had a large part, as president of the Jamestown Corporation, in the launching and continued success of the historical drama "The Common Glory." This has become a major attraction to tourists and has had beneficial effect in related fields such as development of histrionic talent in Virginia.

In the round, Mr. Wright led a life useful to the State and to his vicinage—an unostentatious but solid service to his fellow-Virginians.

burg; five sisters, Mrs. Frank L. Adolph, Miss Marguerite Osborne, and Miss Marian Osborne, all of Williamsburg, Mrs. S. H. Lewis of Silver Spring, Md., and Mrs. B. M. Blount of Chevy Chase, Md., and two grandchildren.

Mr. Osborne, born in Fort Francis, Ontario, Canada, came to Williamsburg in 1945 as manager for The Virginia Gazette, the colonial newspaper which was revived in 1930 by his father, the late Joseph Alexander Osborne, Sr. He previously was with the Salem Times-Register as advertising manager.

In the Peninsula community, he was active in a number of organizations. He was affiliated with Bruton Parish Church; was a past director of the Williamsburg Chamber of Commerce; past committee chairman of the Virginia Press Association; a member of the Williamsburg Press Club and a member of the National Editorial Association. He was registrar of the City of Williamsburg from 1947 through 1948. Recently he was elected to a three-year term on the State Board of Directors for the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Having had wide associations throughout this area, he contributed to its advancement in a way which prompted an area newspaper to refer to him editorially: "His wide capacity for friendship and helpfulness had made a wide circle of friends for him in his years on the Peninsula. His death at an age when he might have had many more useful years of service to the community he loved, makes his passing particularly poignant to the community for the advancement of which 'Alex' Osborne could be depended on always to work constructively."

Mr. Osborne resided at 301 Indian Springs Road in Williamsburg.

MONIER WILLIAMS
Mar. 15 1960

Former Official Of Restoration Succumbs At 52

WILLIAMSBURG—Monier Williams, 301 Indian Springs Road, former director of operating services for Colonial Williamsburg, died Wednesday morning at the Medical College of Virginia after a short illness. He was 52.

A 26-year veteran with the restoration, Williams resigned in May, 1954 for reasons of ill health. At the time he was second in service only to the then Colonial Williamsburg president Kenneth Chorley.

His connection with the restoration began when he joined Todd and Brown, Inc., the engineering corporation engaged in Colonial Williamsburg's earliest building program. He then progressed through a variety of jobs including timekeeper, paymaster, and administrative assistant to the director of construction and maintenance.

A native of Roanoke, Williams was the son of Mrs. Carrie V. Williams and the late Arthur George Williams, professor at the College of William and Mary. He was an alumnus of the College of William and Mary and a member of the social fraternity Pi Kappa Alpha. Active in many civic roles, he had served as president of the Williamsburg Rotary Club and president of the Williamsburg Fire Department.

Seaford Man Electrocuted
As TV Pole Strikes Wire

YORKTOWN—A Seaford man moving from his home was killed instantly by electrocution Monday when the television antenna pole he was dismantling struck a power line.

York County Deputy Sheriff Donald Curtis listed the victim as Homer N. Johnson, 47, a chief warrant officer stationed at Langley Air Force Base.

Johnson was in the process of moving his family from their home on Wiley Road to another residence in the new Capehart housing project on Bethel Road.

Curtis said Johnson was apparently at the halfway mark in removing the antenna and pole from the house through use of a ladder when the iron pole fell against a power line close to the house.

Johnson was holding the iron pole and when contact to the power line was made, he was struck by approximately 7,200 volts of electricity.

The body fell a distance of about ten feet to the ground, striking brick and concrete steps. The medical examiner, Dr. Herman Bailey, diagnosed the death as electrocution.

Johnson's body was taken to the Amory Funeral Home, Grafton, preceding the transfer to Langley.

The York Volunteer Fire Department responded to put out a small electrical blaze at the scene.

Officials and servicemen of the Virginia Electric and Power Company were called to the scene shortly after the accident occurred.

Rites Planned For Mrs. Bagby, APVA Leader

RICHMOND (AP)—Miss Ellen Bagby, 81, chairman of the James-town committee of the Association for the preservation of Virginia Antiquities since 1930, died Tuesday at her Richmond apartment.

Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. said Miss Bagby was "well known and loved by Virginians," and had "helped greatly in keeping alive the principles and shrines prominent in the development of the Commonwealth and the nation."

A funeral service will be conducted at 11:30 a.m., Thursday, at St. James Episcopal Church. Burial will be in Richmond's Hollywood cemetery.

Miss Bagby became chairman of the Jamestown committee in 1930, a post previously filled by her mother, Mrs. Lucy Parke Chamberlayne Bagby.

Mrs. Bagby was a charter member of the APVA and the first chairman of the Jamestown committee. It was during her chairmanship the restoration of Jamestown Island began in 1894.

Surviving Miss Bagby are a nephew, Henry Taylor of Richmond, and three nieces, Miss Mary Taylor of Trevilians, Mrs. W. B. Sydnor of Rapidan and Mrs. Hugh MacNeil of Pasadena, Calif.

A Sort Of Historical Archangel

"The great end of life is not knowledge, but action."—T. Huxley.

At the recent ceremonies at the Hunt Shrine at Jamestown, she was so very chipper; she was buzzing around like a bee finding the first flowers of Springtime. Maybe it was too much for her dedicated heart.

And so death came to Miss Ellen M. Bagby on Tuesday, in her lonely apartment in the heart of Richmond's old brownstone district. At 81, she had spent fourscore years with a singleness of purpose few women of our time manage to keep through the years; she was consecrated to the preservation of the principles and the places that helped to form the foundations of the state of mind that is the Commonwealth today.

Miss Bagby's mother, Mrs. Lucy Parke Chamberlayne Bagby, became interested in the preservation of the site where the first permanent colony of Americans built their triangular fort on a mosquito swamp, and started her personal campaign to develop the area as a historical sanctuary six years before the turn of the century. The daughter quite naturally came by her interest in the labor of love and devotion.

So it was no surprise to the thousands of Virginians who knew her thirty years ago that Miss Ellen was named chairman in 1930 of the Jamestown Preservation Committee. She was later to be called "a sort of historical archangel" by Colonial Williamsburg and the Jamestown Corporation.

Under her constant prodding, the Jamestown area came into its own as a national shrine, with current figures indicating that one-third of all the out-of-state travelers who come into Virginia make it a point to visit the site where three shiploads of English colonists clung tenaciously to life as they established a settlement under the most difficult conditions imaginable.

A vine-covered heap of bricks became, in time, the restored church at Jamestown. A river's edge hummock was probed, and archeologists found the remains of the nation's first industry, the Jamestown glass furnaces.

But Miss Bagby put her tiny foot down with all the authority of one whose forbears came to this country on the Susan Constant when the Federal government wanted to dredge up enough fill to re-create the actual dimensions of Jamestown on the spot where storms and tides 350 years had washed the fortified island's remains down the River James. She wanted no part of this kind of restoration.

Instead, she and the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities were happy to stop the erosion with seawalls, and restore the time-ravaged remains of Captain John Smith's church and the pitiful attempts to establish industry on the Virginia mainland.

Miss Bagby once said, "I spend most of my life looking for things—standing on my head looking for old papers, old books, old family belongings."

And she found them, too. She discovered letters of Patrick Henry and Thomas Jefferson, and calling cards from the Marquis de Lafayette just poking around in her attic. She was that kind of little lady. And she lived in that kind of home.

Together, all her energies helped to make our heritage brighter, our life richer. She sparkled, flashed fire from every facet of her being.

She was one of those who was blessed with the capacity to combine knowledge and action, for the enrichment of her beloved Commonwealth, and a veritable multitude of mourning friends.

Tribute Paid To Miss Ellen Bagby

JAMESTOWN — A memorial resolution was recently adopted by the Jamestown Committee of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities in praise of the late Miss Ellen M. Bagby, head of the Jamestown Committee for 30 years.

A copy of the testimonial was released recently by the Jamestown Foundation, formerly the Virginia 350th Anniversary Commission, of which Miss Bagby was the only woman member.

Miss Bagby was instrumental in maintaining and promoting Jamestown Island as a major memorial to the first permanent English settlers who landed there in 1607 and thus were the first to establish the English heritage on the North American continent.

The Jamestown Committee, in its resolve, noting Miss Bagby's death July 19, said the members "feel as if Jamestown itself had subsided into the surrounding waters of the James. Such a thought would have been unthinkable while she was still alive. And had the idea entered anyone's mind, it would have been rejected instantly by the reassuring conviction that Miss Ellen was capable of dealing with all threats to that historical ground."

"But we have lost a gentlewoman, friend and leader whose vibrant purpose in life was the preservation of that hallowed site where English civilization, as she so often emphasized, was first successfully planted on American soil."

The resolve said of Miss Bagby's father, Dr. George W. Bagby, that he "labored long and wittily in the historical vineyard, leaving to posterity, among other things, that delightful series of essays on antebellum Virginia en-lilled 'The Old Virginia Gentleman and Other Sketches.' A charming sense of humor and ready wit was part of the legacy he passed on to his daughter."

Referring to Miss Bagby's mother, Lucy Parke Chamberlayne Bagby, the committee wrote, she "was a lady of indomitable courage and capability who served as the first chairman of this Jamestown Committee. . . . Admirable traits were transmitted by this distinguished matron to a worthy daughter."

The resolution, a copy of which was also sent to Miss Bagby's family, the Jamestown Corporation and the Jamestown Society, went on to say, "Armed with intense devotion to her Virginia heritage and gifted with gracious and spirited talents, Miss Ellen assumed the chairmanship of the Jamestown Committee in 1930."

Under her scrupulous and dedicated care, Jamestown was protected from both the ravages of nature and the ruthless hands of those who mistakenly believe that progress can be measured only in terms of change. The maintenance of the dignity and serenity of the Association's premier charge was Miss Ellen's mission in life.

"She was eminently successful in her aim and, to the delight of a multitude of admirers, lived to see her achievements widely acclaimed by other organizations interested in the site of the first permanent English settlement in America. In gratitude for her unselfish accomplishments, in memory of a wonderful friend, her colleagues on the Jamestown Committee sorrowfully record these sentiments, realizing that a great Virginia lady has passed from their midst."

1 Dead, Another Wounded In Yorktown Shooting Spree

Jan 8 1961

A Yorktown 38-year-old Negro killed one man and wounded another during a shooting spree in Yorktown Sunday, according to the sheriff's office.

Pronounced dead upon arrival at the Riverside Hospital was Beverly Whiting, 58, Negro, a resident of Seaford. Treated for a gunshot wound in the left knee was Willroy Washington, 23, believed a resident of Newport News.

Charged with murder and felonious shooting was Ernest L. Washington, 38, of Seaford. He is being held in the Yorktown jail under bonds totalling $5,000.

In reconstructing the crime from the testimony of witnesses, Deputy Sheriff Donald E. Curtis said that early Sunday morning Ernest is alleged to have shot Willroy in the knee, using a .38 caliber pistol. Ernest denied the shooting. Willroy, however, told police that Ernest had fired the shot. Willroy was in Ernest's front yard at the time.

Near noon, while Whiting was watching some youngsters play basketball, Ernest drove up, jumped out of his car and fired a pistol several times at Whiting. The pistol was empty. Whiting wrested the pistol from Ernest but returned it when Ernest convinced him he was only kidding.

Witnesses said that Ernest then went into adjoining woods, loaded the gun and came back at Whiting. Again Whiting attempted to take the gun from Ernest but failed and received gunshot wounds in the leg and chest. At 1:15 p. m., Whiting was pronounced dead at Riverside Hospital.

Curtis said he arrested Ernest at his home where he also found the pistol used in the shooting hidden under a mattress in a baby's crib. Curtis said Ernest confessed to the shooting. He also told the deputy sheriff that Whiting had attempted to attack him with a stick.

Assisting Curtis in the investigation were State Troopers W. T. Peters, J. W. Weakley and M. L. Miner.

Whiting is survived by his wife Virginia.

DR. WALTER HARROP

WALTER E. HARROP

"He was a burning and a shining light:
and ye were willing for a season to rejoice in his light."

John 5:35

He walked with quiet dignity among men, and governed well in the house and kingdom of Christ. His strength and wisdom commanded respect; his dedication and steadfastness of purpose in God's service made him a leader and teacher of men.

He was a leader, but he was a servant in the sense that Christ used the word - a servant of God and of his people. He sought out ways to serve people of his congregation and his community. To be with him was to know human friendship, understanding and compassion, and more than this: His light was never dim, and to share its warmth was to know that God was close and the Holy Spirit was alive upon the earth.

He now walks with God, but in our hearts we feel the blessing we have shared by having "rejoiced in his light for a season."

Attorney A. L. Bivins Succumbs At Age 68

Alexander Luther Bivins, 68, of 5500 Huntington Ave., a prominent Newport News attorney and former public official, died at 7 p.m. Thursday in Riverside Hospital.

ALEXANDER LUTHER BIVINS

He had been under treatment for nearly four weeks for injuries received when he fell near his home. He had undergone surgery twice since the fall in which he received severe skull fractures and fractures of the ribs and leg.

Mr. Bivins was a native of Warwick County and was a lifelong resident of the Peninsula. He was a son of the late Frederick Canfield Bivins, former chairman of Newport News School Board.

After graduating at Newport News High School in 1911, he attended the University of Virginia. He was admitted to the practice of law in Virginia in 1917.

He was a member of Newport News School Board from 1923 to 1935, the last two years as chairman.

Mr. Bivins was elected to the Virginia State Senate in 1938 and in 1940 resigned to become Commonwealth's attorney for Newport News. In 1941 he was unopposed for the office of Commonwealth's attorney.

He resigned as Commonwealth's attorney in 1943 to re-enter the private practice of law. In 1957 he became associated as a partner with former Municipal Judge Ben Jacobs and soon thereafter was joined by his son, A. Jeffery Bivins. Late in 1961 the partnership added T. V. Morrison Jr.

A past president of the Newport News Bar Association, Mr. Bivins was past president of the Newport News Kiwanis Club and past exalted ruler of the Newport News Elks Lodge.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Virginia Jeffery Bivins; two sons, A. Jeffery Bivins and Richard Bivins, both of Newport News; three daughters, Mrs. Mary Jeffery Halferty of Grand Rapids, Mich.; Mrs. Spottswood Clayton of Newport News and Mrs. Anne Chamblin of Portsmouth; brother, Fred C. Bivins Jr. of Newport News; two sisters, Mrs. Bessie McFall of Newport News, and Mrs. Mamie Williamson of Brooklyn, and 11 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at a time to be announced in St. Paul's Episcopal Church of which he had been a member for many years. The Rev. T. V. Morrison, rector, will officiate. Burial will be in Peninsula Memorial Park. The family has requested that in lieu of flowers donations be made to the St. Paul's Altar Fund.

Mr. Bivins was taken to the hospital June 30 after he was found badly hurt from the fall near his home. He was unconscious upon arrival at the hospital and never regained consciousness.

Judge Herbert G. Smith, a lifelong friend of the prominent attorney, said: "I have lost a great friend—the legal profession will miss him greatly."

Charles E. Ford, a leading local attorney, said Bivins' death is "a great loss to the community."

W. V. Hoyle, president of the Newport News Bar Association, said of Bivins, "He was my friend and the friend of this Peninsula. Our loss is great and irreplaceable."

Mr. Bivins was a familiar figure in the courts of Newport News and Hampton and had been a participant in many of the more celebrated criminal cases on the Peninsula.

First District Rep. Thomas N. Downing said he was shocked by the news of Mr. Bivins' death and said he knew of no finer or more loyal friend. He said he had been a lifelong friend of the former state senator and that "he would be sorely missed."

State Senator Fred Bateman, incumbent, said "I am deeply distressed at the passing of Sen. Bivins. He was a most loyal friend and a superb advocate of the defendant's cause. 'Bivins for the defense' was a term that for years signified the utmost in advocacy."

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, 78, Dies In New York After 6-Week Illness

By STAN HALL
NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, 78, America's First Lady of the world, died Wednesday.

Her daughter, Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Halstead, and a son, John, were by her side when she died at 6:15 p.m. EST in her Manhattan apartment after a six-week illness.

The cause of death was not announced, but Mrs. Halstead, who came here from Birmingham, Mich., to be with her ailing mother, said that doctors had been called in Wednesday afternoon because of indications of cardiac failure.

The death of the nation's former First Lady and widow of three-term Democratic President Franklin Delano Roosevelt came one day after U.S. national elections in which the party now headed by President John F. Kennedy scored a major congressional triumph. But Mrs. Roosevelt was too ill to vote or even be told of the results.

President Kennedy led the nation in paying tribute to her.

Kennedy, who said he would attend her funeral, called Mrs. Roosevelt "one of the great ladies in the history of this country."

Adlai E. Stevenson, Mrs. Roosevelt's longtime friend, party confidant and fellow United Nations delegate, went to the Roosevelt apartment two hours after her death. He stayed for five minutes and then left as the body was put into a hearse to be taken to Columbia - Presbyterian Medical Center for an autopsy.

Former President Herbert Hoover said: "Mrs. Roosevelt was a lady of fine courage and great devotion to her country."

Mrs. Roosevelt, the precedent-shattering wife of the late Franklin D. Roosevelt, finally was forced to slow her hectic pace this summer because of illness.

She was hospitalized Sept. 26 at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York for treatment of a persistent lung infection and an anemic condition. On Oct. 11 doctors allowed her to go to her apartment home.

But it was not until last week when her family issued a pessimistic report on her condition that most of the world learned that the busy, beloved lady was seriously sick.

She had celebrated her 78th birthday in the hospital where she received more than 8,000 letters from admirers around the world. But the family said she was too ill to look at most of them.

The last of the twice-daily bulletins the family had been issuing came at 4 p.m. Wednesday. In it, they said that the results of Tuesday's election were being kept from her to conserve her strength.

Mrs. Halstead said Mrs. Roosevelt's body would be taken to her See Mrs. Eleanor, Page 50, Col. 1

James Wesley White, 91, who had made his home here on Lookout Mountain with his daughter, Mrs. F. Ward Reilly, since his retirement in 1955 as traffic manager for the Tennessee Corp., died Sunday afternoon in a local hospital.

Mr. White was born Aug. 15, 1871, in Portsmouth, Va., the son of Wesley Franklin White and Margaret Collins White.

His wife, Rosa A. White, died July 31, 1937.

His survivors in addition to his daughter include two grandsons, F. Ward Reilly Jr. and James W. Reilly, both of Lookout Mountain, and five great-grandchildren.

Soon after he finished school Mr. White got a job with Seaboard Air Line Railway as an office boy at the Portsmouth terminal offices. In May of 1908 he had been named general industrial agent for the entire system. He resigned that post in 1911 to become traffic manager for the International Agricultural Corp., with headquarters in Atlanta.

Dollar-a-Year Man

While with International Agricultural Corp., he also was named vice president of the Chattanooga Fertilizer Co., the Seacoast Fertilizer Co., and Anderson Fertilizer Co. He was also chairman of the traffic committee of the National Fertilizer and Southern Fertilizer Associations and traffic advisor for Chemical Alliance, Inc.

During World War I Mr. White served in Washington, D.C. as a "dollar a year man" in charge of the U.S. Army Tank Line.

In 1923 he was named sales manager of the Ducktown Chemical and Iron Co., and a director and traffic manager of the Ducktown Tank Line Co. In 1936 his company was merged with the Tennessee Corp., and he was named traffic manager of that concern with headquarters in Atlanta. He remained there until his retirement in 1955.

Mr. White was a member of the Association of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Piedmont Driving Club, the Capital City Club, and he served two terms as president of the Atlanta Traffic Club.

Graveside services will be held Tuesday at Westview Cemetery in Atlanta at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Harold Barrett officiating.

By WILLIAM J. HEFFERLE

BOSTON (UPI)—A world he loved and wrote about mourned the death Tuesday of Robert Frost, the Impish New England poet whose simple verse established him as a literary giant and great humanist.

The 88-year-old Frost, who years ago became this nation's unofficial poet laureate, died at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital at 1:50 a.m. EST Tuesday with only doctors and nurses at his bedside.

Though mentally keen until the end, he said not a word. A seven-week struggle against a series of ailments left him physically exhausted.

Funeral arrangements remained incomplete pending the arrival of relatives.

Tributes poured in from around the world—from both sides of the political divisions he always ignored or jibed at. He spent a lifetime simply writing about people and how they feel.

In Washington, President Kennedy, a close friend of the old poet, said, "His death impoverishes us all, but he has bequeathed to us a body of imperishable verse from which Americans will forever gain joy and understanding. He had promises to keep and miles to go and now he sleeps."

The President's last sentence paraphrased one of Frost's most famous works, "Stopping by Woods on a Snowy Evening", in which he said:

"The woods are lovely dark and deep
But I have promises to keep
And miles to go before I sleep."

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass told the Russian people of the death of "an outstanding American poet." The government newspaper Izvestia yesterday printed a poetic tribute to Frost, who visited the Soviet Union last summer.

The Swedish Academy at Stockholm made an unprecedented disclosure. The academy, which declines to reveal those only considered for Nobel prizes, disclosed that Frost had been considered a number of times for the literature award. "His importance was obvious to us," said academy secretary Dr. Anders Osterling.

Fellow poet T. S. Eliot said in London he was "very grieved to hear of Mr. Frost's death. He was a poet of lasting importance."

Other tributes came from poet-author Mark Van Doren, Pulitzer prize winner John Hersey and many more, including political leaders.

The white-haired poet, whose warmth and kindness made him the friend of every man, won four Pulitzer Prizes for poetry, more than any other writer of verse.

Perhaps the high point in his long career came just two years ago when then President-elect Kennedy asked Frost to read a poem at his inauguration.

Few can forget that bitter cold but brilliant Washington day when Frost was blinded by the sun and could not read the lines he had prepared especially for the occasion. Instead, he recited from memory his poem, "The Gift Outright."

His poems were masterpieces of simplicity, frequently humorous, sometimes melancholy, always wrapping profound thought in few words.

Among his many friends he counted Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, whom he met last year while touring Russia with Secretary of State Stewart M. Udall. He referred to Khrushchev as his "friendly rival" and described him as a "ruffian... he's ready for a fight. He's not afraid of us and we're not afraid of him."

With his pen Frost could produce a chuckle or a tear with equal ease. In the "Hardship of Accounting" he said:

"Nobody was ever meant
To remember or invent
What he did with every cent."

T. Ryland Sanford

T. Ryland Sanford devoted most of his adult life to the cause of public education on the Virginia Peninsula. A native of Hampton, he compiled a brilliant athletic record and a variety of degrees before a brief affiliation with the State Department of Education, after which he became superintendent of schools for Warwick and York Counties.

That was in 1933. The area of his jurisdiction was relatively sparsely populated and predominately rural. Mr. Sanford saw great changes in the decades that followed; his role was to attempt to keep pace with the educational needs of Warwick and York, with the resources at his command.

It wasn't an easy job, but he faced up to its difficulties determinedly and our Peninsula's people owe to his memory a great debt of gratitude. He took over the superintendency of the schools of the City of Warwick when that municipality was born in 1952, and with its merger into the City of Newport News, Mr. Sanford accepted an important part in administration of this greatly expanded system—that of assistant superintendent for business and finance.

In 1961, he was stricken by a heart attack and last year found it necessary to retire. His untimely death came at the age of 58. It was Clergyman William Elbery Channing who said: "Example is graven on the rock, and the lesson is not soon lost." Mr. Sanford provided for us an example of right living and valuable public service.

T. Ryland Sanford, Retired School Official, Dies At 58

T. Ryland Sanford, of 806 River Road, a retired Newport News school official, died Friday morning at his home. He was 58.

Mr. Sanford retired last year as assistant superintendent for business and finance and Newport News School Board clerk. Prior to consolidation of Newport News and Warwick he served as Warwick superintendent of schools.

He had been in ill health since a heart attack in the fall of 1961.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday in Hilton Baptist Church. Dr. John H. Garber will officiate. Burial will be in Peninsula Memorial Park.

Mr. Sanford was a native of Hampton. His father, the Rev. T. R. Sanford Sr., was pastor of Hampton Baptist Church before moving to Chatham.

The Peninsula educator attended Chatham schools before attending Hargrave Military Academy. He lettered in football, baseball and basketball at Hargrave. He later became a University of Richmond football star and was selected as team captain in his senior year of 1927.

Mr. Sanford received bachelor and master degrees in education and later received a law degree from New York University. He returned to the Hargrave Academy to help in the educational program before joining the State Department of Education as physical education supervisor.

He left the state position in 1933 to become school superintendent for Warwick and York Counties. He was selected as school superintendent for Warwick when the city was formed in 1952.

Mr. Sanford was a member of Hilton Baptist Church and the Tribble Bible Class for a number of years.

Survivors are his wife, Mrs. Janet Hutchinson Sanford; a daughter, Miss Lacey Sanford of Newport News; a sister, Mrs. H. Clay Turner of Axton; and five brothers, Taylor Sanford, athletic director at Fort Lee, Dr. Nevitt Sanford of the Stanford University psychology department, Dr. Filmore Sanford of the University of Texas psychology department, Dr. John D. Sanford, director of physical education and athletics at Elon College, and Kerfoot Sanford of Luray.

The family has requested contributions be made to the Heart Fund or the National Foundation in lieu of flowers.

Son Of York Court Clerk Electrocuted; Was To Be Graduated At Annapolis

May 28, 1963

A young man who was due to graduate next week from the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., was electrocuted late Tuesday afternoon near Williamsburg when the model airplane he was operating came in contact with high-voltage power lines.

Richard R. Bryant, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville I. Bryant of 181 Queens Drive West, was pronounced dead at the scene by a Williamsburg medical examiner. Efforts to revive him by the Williamsburg Rescue Squad were futile.

The accident occurred on Queens Drive East, near the community swimming pool, shortly before 5 p.m. The model airplane reportedly was equipped with metal control wires, which conducted the electricity to the victim.

Young Bryant was scheduled to return to Annapolis Tuesday night to prepare for graduation. He was due to receive a bachelor of science degree and a commission in the Navy during the academy's exercises June 5. He planned to report for flight training after graduation.

Bryant attended the Naval Preparatory School at Bainbridge, Md., prior to entering the academy on a congressional appointment in July 1959. While at Annapolis, he participated in foot-

WILLIAMSBURG — Dr. Baxter I. Bell Sr., Williamsburg physician since 1923 and founder of Bell Hospital, died at the hospital at 8 p.m. Monday, after a long illness.

His body was taken to Bucknott Funeral Home. Arrangements are incomplete.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Imogene Black Bell of Williamsburg; a son, Dr. B. I. Bell Jr. of Williamsburg; two daughters, Mrs. R. A. Mulford of Gloucester Point and Mrs. Ira B. Hall of Norfolk; a brother, Clifton Bell of Swanquarter, N. C., and six grandchildren.

Dr. Bell was 74 years old. He maintained his practice up until his hospitalization this summer.

Dr. Bell was born in Hyde County, N. C., and attended grade and high school at Swanquarter, N. C. After graduation from high school he entered pre-medical studies at the University of North Carolina. He graduated from Medical College of Virginia and did one year of internship at Abingdon Hospital in Abingdon.

Dr. Bell did medical work in the mountains of Kentucky during World War I and later told often of his interesting experiences there.

He came to Williamsburg in 1918 as a member of the staff of Eastern State Hospital. Here he met his wife, who was head of occupational therapy at Eastern State at that time. They were married June 30, 1925.

The same year of his marriage, Dr. Bell started private practice in Williamsburg. His first office was in his home at the Carter-Saunders House. The following year, however, he and Dr. Ernest Alderman, an associate, opened a private hospital on Duke of Gloucester St., in the old Williamsburg Hotel, a large building standing near the Powder Horn.

A year after the hospital began operation, Dr. Bell and Dr. Alderman sold the building to an organization represented by Dr. W. A. R. Goodwin, which later turned out to be Williamsburg Restoration, Inc.

Dr. Bell purchased property on Cary St. and built the present Bell Hospital in 1930. For many years he was college physician for the College of William and Mary.

Apr 5,

WASHINGTON, Apr. 5—Gen. of the Army Douglas MacArthur—dramatic hero of three wars—slipped out of deep sleep into death Sunday, yielding at last to multiple ailments that finally overwhelmed his stubborn will to live.

Death came at 2:39 p. m. to end a life that spanned 84 years and found glory and honor on the battlefields of France, the South Pacific and Korea.

Death was officially attributed to kidney and liver failure.

Jean MacArthur was at the side of the still, unconscious form of her husband at Walter Reed Army Medical Center when the doctors finally found it impossible to sustain his heartbeat and his very breath. The couple's son, Arthur, 26, also was at the bedside.

Also present was Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, long-time aide and friend of MacArthur.

So ended a 13-day siege in which the general sustained the impact of two emergency operations and myriad other conditions which kept him in critical condition and slow decline.

President Johnson, who had visited MacArthur after the general's early March operation, was notified immediately.

The President quickly issued a proclamation praising MacArthur as "one of America's greater heroes" and directing flags to be flown at half-staff until after the funeral next Saturday.

The body was returned Sunday by highway to New York City where it will lie in state at the 7th Regimental Armory.

It will be brought back to Washington by train to lie in state for a day in the Capitol rotunda where so recently the body of the assassinated President John F. Kennedy lay.

After that, it will be flown to Norfolk, Va., for burial there in a memorial mausoleum already prepared in line with MacArthur's wishes. Funeral services will be at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Norfolk.

The body will be at the Universal Funeral Chapel in New York until Tuesday morning and will lie in repose at the armory from 10 a. m. Tuesday until 10 p. m.

After arrival by train in Washington Wednesday, the body will lie in state in the rotunda from 3:30 that afternoon until noon Thursday. After being flown to Norfolk, the body will rest at the MacArthur Memorial until funeral services Saturday morning at St. Paul's. Burial at the memorial will follow.

Lt. Col. Edward Costello, reading the official death bulletin in a baling voice, broke the news to reporters assembled at the public relations office of the medical center, of which the Walter Reed General Hospital is a part. The bulletin said:

"General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, 84, died at 2:39 p. m. EST today at Walter Reed General Hospital, where he had been a patient since March 2.

"Death was attributed to acute renal kidney and liver failure which followed his recent surgical operations to relieve common bile duct obstruction, esophageal and intestinal obstruction with perforation."

It went on then to give funeral arrangements. In a sense, the final hours for the old warrior were as the general once said the last hours of an old soldier should be. They never die, he said, "they just fade away."

Doctors marveled at what they called MacArthur's "strength and fiber" and his will to live, as he survived the stress of three operations in 24 days, staging what appeared to be a normal recovery from the first surgery March 6 until struck down again March 23.

Prime causes of the coma and death were apparently poisoning, building up in the blood because of failing liver and kidney functions. At the end, doctors said only a miracle could have saved him.

They said they had done everything medical science could do. If his fight against death showed courage and stamina, then it was cut from the same fiber as his life. He graduated at the top of his class from the U. S. Military Academy, won his nation's highest award, the Medal of Honor, and rose to the second highest military rank in the U. S. Army.

He was one of eight generals of the Army since Ulysses S. Grant, and outranked only by General of the Armies John J. Pershing.

MacArthur had forged some of the proudest and most controversial episodes in the nation's military annals during his 52-year Army career which spanned three wars.

He won fame as a front-line general in World War I. He was supreme Allied commander in the Southwest Pacific in World War II. He headed the occupation government in Japan. He led forces against the Communists in Korea.

His famous declaration, "I shall return," became the theme of the Allied campaign in the Philippines during the second world war.

During the Korean conflict, MacArthur clashed with his commander-in-chief, President Harry S. Truman, on policy. Truman fired him in the spring of 1951.

The general returned to the United States and made a stirring address to a joint session of Congress. In it he quoted from an old barracks ballad which proclaimed, "Old soldiers never die . . . they just fade away."

"And like the old soldier of that ballad," MacArthur told the Congress, "I now close my military career and just fade away, an old soldier who tried."

Mathe ws Auto Crush Kills Man

MATHEWS—A 53-year-old Mathews County man was killed and three others were injured in a car-truck accident late Thursday afternoon on Route 14 near Ward's Corner.

State Police identified the victim as Richard James Diggs of Port Haywood.

Injured were Charles Maxwell Hurst, William Clayton Moughan and Sherwood Eugene Sutton, all of Mathews.

Diggs was a passenger in a 1962 compact station wagon traveling east on Route 14 about a mile west of Route 198.

Trooper L. R. Peak quoted Charles Robert Diggs of Port Haywood, driver of the car, as saying the automobile was struck behind by a truck. The auto then left the highway and overturned several times.

Hurst, 57, listed as the driver of the pick-up truck, sustained chest injuries and head lacerations. He was taken to Riverside Hospital in Newport News, where his condition was listed as fair.

Moughan and Sutton were treated for lacerations and multiple abrasions by local physicians and released. Both were passengers in the station wagon.

The accident occurred at about 5:10 p.m.

Trooper McPeak said no charges have been filed.

Diggs is survived by his wife, Mrs. Emily Knight Diggs; three daughters, Miss Emily Sherrill Diggs, Miss Mary Kathryn Diggs and Miss Janet Ruth Diggs, all of Port Haywood; and one sister, Mrs. Mary Diggs Buchanan of Port Haywood.

A funeral service will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday at St. Paul Methodist Church, Susan, conducted by the Rev. Stuart Johnston, pastor. Burial will follow in the St. Paul Annex Cemetery with Masonic rites.

He was a member of Oriental Lodge No. 20, AF & AM, and was secretary of the board of stewards, a trustee and assistant Bible class teacher at St. Paul Methodist Church.

He was employed at the Langley Research Center for the past 25 years and was superintendent of aero-lag mechanics.

The body will remain at the Foster-Faulkner Funeral Home, Mathews, until 1 p.m. Sunday when it will be moved to the church.

A Great Man Passes

The political storm that swirled around Herbert Clark Hoover's head more than three decades ago might have driven a lesser man to despair and to cover.

But President Hoover was made of sterner stuff. He did not push himself into the limelight after having been shunted aside and saddled with the blame for a depression which many historians have concluded he was not responsible for and was powerless to bring to an end. But, when the call came for him to serve the United States again, Mr. Hoover responded in full measure, serving for nine years as head of the Hoover Commission whose recommendations have done much toward increasing efficiency of the executive branch of our federal government.

His was a success story in the great American tradition of the poor boy who makes good. Son of a blacksmith, he made his fortune early in life and thereafter was a public servant in the truest sense of the term.

Mr. Hoover's rugged constitution and his continued dynamic concern with the state of world and national affairs enable him to survive beyond the age of 90; and John Adams among our other Presidents lived so long.

Mr. Hoover compelled respect and admiration, in his later years, even from those who disagreed violently with his conservative philosophy, best expressed in these words: "If it is reactionary to be free men, then I shall be proud of the title for my remaining days. As a matter of fact, it is the only genuine liberalism."

Despite his age and infirmities, Mr. Hoover remained active until just a few months ago, engaging in a phenomenal correspondence with the aid of a large secretarial staff that handles more than 40,000 letters annually—adequate testimony to the esteem in which he was held by his fellow-men.

Herbert Clark Hoover was privileged by ability, strong will and unwavering patriotism, to do more than most for his country. There is an honored place in history for this man who served so long and so well.

W. E. Hogg, York County Judge, Is Dead At Age Of 74

W. E. HOGG

YORKTOWN — York County Judge William Edward Hogg, 74, attorney and jurist, died in the Richmond Memorial Hospital Wednesday morning after a long illness. Nov. 4.

Well-known throughout the Peninsula, Judge Hogg handed down decisions in cases which touched upon almost every aspect of law, including criminal, traffic, civil, domestic, and juvenile.

He practiced law for almost half a century. He served as commonwealth's attorney for York County for 12 years and has been a judge for 28 years. The jurist, admired by many through his years of public service, was honored numerous times during his career, including a tribute as Warwick County's "first citizen" in 1944 and his selection as the "outstanding citizen" of York County in 1962.

Year before last, he qualified for another four-year term in office. Even though he had reached retirement age, he had no idea of retiring as long as his health permitted. He was well-known to many for his skill and agility in boatbuilding and fishing, as well as in the field of law.

Judge Hogg was the author of a book based upon studies of all criminal opinions of courts of last resort of Virginia. The volume, entitled, "Virginia Criminal Law," has become a guide for many attorneys and judges throughout Virginia.

The volume, covering all decisions through 1938, is a compilation of the holdings of the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia on various questions decided in criminal cases.

Judge Hogg began the practice of law in 1915 and had a thriving general practice of law in addition to presiding over county court sessions, even though the court docket became heavier with each passing year. The judge was born in 1890, a son of William and Frances Hogg in the Woodstock Creek section of York County in an area now known as Hornsbyville. He was educated in York County schools and attended West Point Seminary in 1904.

Graduating from the commercial department of Smith Deal Business College in Richmond in 1905, when he was 15 years of age, he later took a four-year correspondence course in law before attending the Washington and Lee University Law School.

He passed his bar examination June, 1915, at Roanoke. He started on his law practice in York County, then later in Hopewell.

He moved back to the Peninsula and began the practice of law in Hampton, but due to health came back to Yorktown.

He was elected York County commonwealth's attorney in 1919 and served in the post for three terms. Then he opened an office in Newport News and commuted between that city and Yorktown.

Appointed trial justice for York County and Warwick County in November, 1936, he served in this dual capacity until November, 1952, when Warwick became a city. He continued as trial justice for York until the post became county judge, merely a change in designation. He has served for a total of 27 years.

At one time, he was the commissioner in chancery of the York Circuit Court, a post he held for many years.

Judge Hogg married, first, Mrs. Gertrude Ironmonger Hogg, widow of Charles J. Hogg. After her death in 1942, he married Mrs. Mamie Lee Marsh, a widow, formerly of Richmond.

A member of the Delaware Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men and a past governor of the Cosmopolitan Club of Newport News, he attended Grace Episcopal Church and Crooks Memorial Methodist Church. He was also a member of the Yorktown Masonic Lodge, Khe-dive Temple and several fraternal organizations connected with the legal profession.

He is survived by his widow, Mamie; a daughter, Mrs. James T. Lee of Hampton; a son, Charles J. Hogg of Yorktown; a stepson, James Ward Marsh of Richmond; a sister, Mrs. J. Wesley Ironmonger of Seaford; ten grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at Grace Episcopal Church, Yorktown. The body is at Amory's Funeral Home in Grafton.

The family is at the Yorktown home.

In our midst we see daily those men who live a quiet but truly effective life, we see those men whose participation in contemporary history is a matter of common knowledge, and we see men whose varied interests manage to claim their attention in a wide area of the public domain.

York County Judge William Edward Hogg was one of those whose catholicity of tastes brought him into contact with a wide range of friends outside his lifelong devotion to the law.

He regarded the structure of the law as an old building, invitingly open for exploration, with some areas quite sound, other sections in constant need of repair and revision.

To this end he lent his investigative talents and writing skills, and his definitive work in this field "Virginia Criminal Law" has since become a guide for many Virginia lawyers on bar and bench alike.

He managed this survey of criminal studies even though serving York as Commonwealth's Attorney for and judge for the past 28 years.

As befits any citizen whose been spent within sight of the York and Chesapeake Bay, Judge Hogg dedicated waterman in the hot away from the courtroom and books.

He was of a different, a wonderfully crusty old pa. bench. He was graduated from a F business college at 15, taught his through correspondence courses, rolled at Washington and Lee U.

Judge Hogg was one of the tens of the York community, f years making his own quiet contri the welfare of the people in the loved. As the years creep by, the change, good friends depart, and leaves us the poorer. It is a son that must be faced with tragic n

Negro Nat King Cole Fans Will Pay Respects Today

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Thousands of Nat King Cole's fans are expected to pay final respects today to the singer who died of cancer.

Cole's body will lie in a sealed casket at St. James Episcopal church for seven hours today for the public to visit. The funeral Thursday will be private.

Although periodic medical bulletins indicated Cole's condition after surgery for removal of his left lung was satisfactory, an autopsy disclosed the cancer had spread throughout his body.

The official cause of death was listed as "extensive metastatic carcinoma of the lung."

Cole, who watched television often during his hospitalization, was told of his cancer but did not realize the magnitude of his illness. Until he died in his sleep early Tuesday, public announcements still told of hopes for his full recovery and an opportunity to sing again in public.

Retired Hampton Captain Missing As Tugboat Sinks

NORFOLK (AP) — A runaway tugboat Turmoil and sank it in Hampton Roads Monday. One crewman was lost and two others were rescued.

The survivors said that they were unaware that their vessel had suffered any damage to the collision which occurred a short while before the sinking.

Coast Guard and Navy rescue craft searched vainly through the night for retired tugboat Capt. Clary Mills of Hampton. He was last seen in the pilot house of the Turmoil and may have gone down with the ship.

Capt. Edward Haldeman of Hampton and William Burke of Virginia Beach were rescued by crewmen from the amphibious assault ship Guam.

They said they were towing another tugboat from North Carolina to Hampton when the collision occurred shortly after 5 p.m.

They said the tow overran the tugboat and then rammed it in the stern. The crash apparently gouged a hole in the Turmoil but the crew was unaware of it until the Turmoil began to sink. Witnesses said the tugboat suddenly settled back on its stern and started to go down.

Mills was in the pilot house at the time and he called to Burke on deck to go below and tell the captain what was happening. Burke met Haldeman as the captain was on his way topside.

When they got to the deck the tug was awash. They said they stepped over the gunnel and into the water.

The tugboat sank in moments. A liferaft floated free and the survivors made for it. They said they didn't see any sign of Mills after he had sent Burke below.

The skipper and a lookout aboard the Guam spotted the Turmoil in trouble at 5:15. A boat was put over the side and the survivors were picked up about 20 minutes later.

The Turmoil is a 55-footer owned by the Hauserman Towing Co. of Hampton.

An official aboard the Guam said the survivors were "shook and confused" and did not say what North Carolina port they had come from.

Fairfax County Pastor's Death Ruled Suicide

McLEAN (UPI) — The death of Methodist Minister Garland Evans Hopkins, widely known as an expert in Muslim-Christian relations, was ruled suicide Tuesday.

Fairfax County police said the body of the 51-year-old Hopkins was found at his home during the weekend. A container of rat poison, a will and a prepared obituary were also found near the body.

Dr. Hopkins was one of the founders of the World Fellowship of Muslims and Christians and served for a time as secretary-general of the group.

In 1947, he met King Ibn Saud at the monarch's tent camp in the Arabian Desert and later said that the visit was unforgettable.

"I shall never forget his squinted one good eye as he told me that Americans are more interested in money than in God," Hopkins said.

"Why try to refute it? He had good evidence of what he was talking about," Hopkins added.

Hopkins had served as a military chaplain and as pastor of churches in Richmond, Winchester and Norfolk. He was also at one time assistant secretary of the Methodist Board of Missions and had been executive chairman of the Citizens Committee for American Policy in the Far East.

Dr. Earl Gregg Swem

Dr. Earl Gregg Swem, who died on Wednesday in Louisville at the age of 95, has left many enduring monuments to his lifetime of indefatigable scholarly activity.

Virginia's foremost bibliographer produced his major work, the monumental "Virginia Historical Index," nearly three decades ago. So well known that historians simply refer to it as "Swem," that magnum opus covers painstakingly the entire range of Commonwealth colonial history. It is THE standard work in its field.

Countless other publications on Virginia and Southern history also bear his name, as compiler, editor or author, many having appeared since he retired in 1944 from the duties of librarian at the College of William and Mary. As librarian emeritus, Dr. Swem hardly slackened his pace until quite recently. He was called upon often to serve as a consultant of historical research.

At 86, he accepted the formidable task of editing the 23 monographs marking the 350th anniversary of the landing at Jamestown and, at the request of the state and national Jamestown commissions, presented the set to Queen Elizabeth II on her visit to Virginia in 1957.

In addition to his various writing and cataloguing accomplishments, Dr. Swem was largely instrumental in developing the Virginia State Library and the William and Mary Library collections to their present widely-respected status. Most appropriately, the college's new $3 million library, construction of which is scheduled to be completed this summer, will bear his name.

Dr. Swem was also a much-beloved human being. He retained through the years the lively enthusiasms of his youth and was truly a delightful person to know. In many ways, his spirit lives on.

York Resident's
Body Recovered
From York River

YORKTOWN—A York County man's body was found Sunday afternoon in the Poquoson River at the entrance to Chesapeake Bay, according to the York County sheriff's office.

He was identified by police as Lamar R. Stanley Jr., 49, of Hodges Cove Road, Dare.

York County Sheriff A. S. White Jr. said the body was found floating in the water 500 yards east of a red buoy near York Point.

Stanley's small motorboat was found drifting in the Poquoson River, about one-quarter of a mile from the area where his body was found.

Stanley was last seen at his home at about 3 p.m., prior to going out on his boat alone.

Sheriff White said Stanley had no history of heart trouble, but it is believed he had a seizure of some kind and then fell overboard.

The body was examined by Dr. R. Rives Bailey, an assistant state medical examiner for York County.

Police said Stanley's body was found by G. R. Blackwood of Railway Road, Dare, and W. P. Cook of Jethro Lane, Dare.

The body was taken to the Amory Funeral Home at Grafton, after it was taken ashore at a pier located at the end of Hodges Cove Road.

Later the body will be taken to the State Medical Examiner's office in to Norfolk, where the cause of death will be determined.

Stanley is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pauline Floyd Stanley; two daughters, Miss Sandra Stanley of the home and Mrs. Wayne Thomas of Newport News; father, Lamar Stanley Sr. of Newport News; mother, Mrs. Lola K. Stanley of Long Beach, Calif., and a granddaughter.

Services Held For Sexton At Jamestown

JAMESTOWN — Funeral services were held in Richmond Wednesday for Sam Robinson, former sexton of Old Tower Church here who was well known as a colorful guide for visitors to Jamestown Island. He died Sunday in Richmond.

Robinson first came to Jamestown in 1936 and, with the exception of World War II, he lived on the island each summer, working at the island church and telling visitors his story of "The Mother-In-Law Tree." During the winters, Robinson always returned to his home in Richmond.

Early in the summer of 1964, Robinson became ill and was hospitalized for several weeks. He was never able to return to the island.

Through his interpretive work, Robinson became known all over the country. He spoke before the Queen of England when she visited Jamestown in 1957, the King and Queen of Greece and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Visitors still frequently ask about Robinson at the Jamestown Visitors Center. Many persons visit Jamestown for the second time just to hear Robinson's story.

According to the mother-in-law tree legend Miss Sarah Harrison and Dr. James Blair were married in 1687 against her parents wishes. After the couple died and were buried side by side, a sycamore tree grew between the graves and separated the couple. The tree, supposedly planted by Mrs. Blair's mother who was also dead, was able to do what the mother wanted to do.

Robinson was pictured on the cover of the April 1950 edition of Readers' Digest. Robinson's only comment about the publicity was, "I ain't ever wore a red tie in my life, I don't like 'em." He was pictured wearing a red tie.

Robinson was born in Canada and lived for many years in New York. However, visitors often commented on his "old southern accent."

Robinson, whose age is not known, was buried Wednesday in the East End Cemetery in Richmond.

Area Mourns Death Of York's Simpson

Jan. 14, 1966

Tragedy struck a Peninsula District high school for the second time within a week Thursday morning when Lewis Elmore (Red) Simpson, 52, vice principal at York High School and long-time area sports figure, died at his home in Seaford.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at Seaford for the Alabama native who was a three-sport athlete at the University of Kentucky.

Simpson's death caused the postponement of the Ferguson-York basketball game, slated for tonight, to Feb. 26 and the indefinite postponement of the York-Hampton wrestling match.

Only last Friday, the death of Rocky Triantafellu Jr., Kecoughtan senior class president, caused two cage postponements.

As a result of the rescheduled Ferguson-York game, the two teams non-conference tilt Feb. 14 has been made a league game.

The latter date's clash will not count in Peninsula standings.

"It's hard to put in words," said Simpson, Page 28, Cols. 1-2

Caradine Hooton Dies 1623

The Rev. Dr. Caradine R. Hooton, first general secretary of the General Board of Christian Social Concerns of The Methodist Church, died suddenly on February 23 in Washington, D.C. He was 71.

Born in Hughes Spring, Texas, in 1895, Dr. Hooton pastored Methodist churches in Texas and Oklahoma City from 1925 until he was elected general secretary of the former Methodist Board of Temperance in 1949.

When, in 1961, the Board of Temperance became the Division of Temperance and General Welfare of the newly created General Board of Christian Social Concerns, Dr. Hooton became the Board's general secretary. He held this position until July 1963, when he resigned to become executive director of the National Temperance League, now the American Council on Alcohol Problems.

While with the Board of Temperance, Dr. Hooton wrote numerous books, among them What Shall We Say About Alcohol? and Questions and Answers. Under his leadership several prize-winning motion pictures were produced, including "Far from Alone," "Stop Driving Us Crazy," and "How Long the Night."

A graduate of Texas University Law School, he had been admitted to practice before the bar of the United States Supreme Court at Washington, D.C.

Holding the B.A. and LL.B. degrees, Dr. Hooton was recipient of the honorary degrees of Doctor of Divinity (from his Alma Mater, Southwestern University) and Doctor of Laws (Oklahoma City University). Through a successful series of outstanding pastors, Dr. Hooton was president of councils of churches and creator of a marriage clinic. He directed the first National Consultations of Pastoral Care and Social Ethics Professors.

FATAL CRASH ON COLONIAL PARKWAY

A Seaford man, John Atwood Perkins, 21, was killed early Sunday morning when the car he was driving smashed into a large elm tree on the shoulder of the Colonial Parkway. The accident occurred near the Ringfield area, about five miles from Yorktown.

Aug 21, 1966

Man From York County Killed In Crash On Colonial Parkway

YORKTOWN—A York County man died of multiple injuries early Sunday morning when the car he was driving hurtled off the Colonial Parkway and smashed into a large elm tree at high speed.

Roger E. Giddings, ranger of the Colonial National Historical Park, identified the crash victim as John Atwood Perkins, 21, of Box 23, Seaford Road, Yorktown.

The mishap was the second fatal accident this year on the parkway.

Examined At Scene

The body was examined at the scene of the accident by Dr. R. K. Joyner, acting as assistant state medical examiner for York County.

Injuries included fractures of the skull, neck, hip and leg, and multiple internal injuries. The body was taken to the Bethesda Funeral Home, Williamsburg, by a rescue squad ambulance of the Williamsburg Fire Department and later transferred to the R. Hayden Smith Funeral Home, Hampton.

Giddings said the Perkins car was traveling toward Williamsburg and failed to negotiate a curve between the Felgate Creek Bridge and Ringfield picnic area, about five miles from Yorktown.

Tore Down Sign

The car left the parkway on the right hand side, tore down a sign, traveled approximately 350 feet and smashed into the tree at a high rate of speed, the ranger said. The right front of the vehicle struck the tree and the dashboard and firewall were smashed against the back of the front seat.

The 1966 coupe was totally demolished in the 3 a.m. crash.

Giddings said shortly before the accident, he observed the car driving onto the parkway at high speed from the Route 238 access road at Yorktown. He was compelled to wait for another car to pass by before he could take pursuit.

The ranger said he attempted to follow the car at speeds of from 80 to 85 miles an hour, but was unable to catch up. He gave up the chase at Indian Field Church, a short distance from where the accident occurred. A few minutes later, he said he received a call informing him of the smashup.

Giddings was assisted by Chief Park Ranger Phillip E. Ward and District Ranger Virgil G. Leimer.

He was born in Hampton and was a lifelong resident of Seaford. He attended Hampton Roads Academy and graduated

Byrd Has Special Place In History, Godwin Says

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Led by Gov. Mills E. Godwin, who said the "news was not unexpected but it is something we all deeply regret," Virginia officials paid tribute Thursday to Harry F. Byrd.

Informed, while attending a Virginia World Trade Conference, that Byrd had died, Godwin said it was "impossible for me adequately to express the feelings of the people of this state and nation."

"He was an illustrious name, one synonymous with Virginia. He occupied a very special place in the hall of fame of this state and of America."

Later, at a hurriedly called news conference, Godwin said in an official statement that Byrd's "contributions to America cannot be overestimated."

"Sure, Steady Flame"

The governor said "for those of us who have known intimately the comfort of his presence, a sure and steady flame has gone out, but the influence of his unselfish life will remain with us as a constant reminder of the principles for which he stood so steadfastly."

Godwin ordered flags over state buildings flown at half staff until after Byrd's funeral. In deference to Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., in the midst of a campaign to win for himself his father's U. S. Senate seat, several candidates called a temporary halt to campaigning. They were Lawrence M. Traylor, Byrd's Republican opponent; William B. Spong Jr., Byrd's Democratic running mate, and George C. Rawlings Jr.

Officials commenting on Byrd's death included:

Former Gov. Albertis S. Harrison— "... No man has contributed more to the welfare of Virginia, to her progress and to her integrity. It is to be hoped that the sound principles and policies which he enunciated and for which he stood and fought will be respected and continued."

Former Gov. J. Lindsay Almond—"The family has Mrs. Almond's and my deepest sympathies."

Rep. David E. Satterfield III—"with his passing we have lost a great Virginian and a great American."

U. S. Sen. A. Willis Robertson, long Byrd's colleague in the Senate—"His life was devoted to serving the people of Virginia. There is no area of the state with which his name is not connected, and no area will fail to

Departed Sen. Byrd The Champion Of Common Honesty In Government

WASHINGTON — Harry F. Byrd of Virginia is gone, but the lesson which his career teaches has an enduring significance. For he manifested courage and integrity amid the hypocrisies of political life.

There are all sorts of definitions of "conservatism" being publicized, but most of them do not fit Harry Byrd. Nor could he be described by many of the other "isms" and phrases which are being currently used to describe persons who do not believe in misapplying other people's money to gain even temporarily the voting support of selfish groups.

Simply stated, the departed Senator was unequivocally the champion of common honesty in government and of a public servant's obligation to spend taxpayers' money and borrowed funds with the same frugality as if it were his own private income.

Harry Byrd was known county-wide as a "progressive" when he became Governor of Virginia in 1928. He put through the state legislature the nation's first anti-lynching law, and there hasn't been a lynching since in Virginia. He undertook a major highway building program and put it on a pay-as-you-go state government by consolidating about 100 agencies into 12 departments.

Governor Byrd came to the United States Senate on March 4, 1933 — the dismal day when all the banks throughout the country were ordered closed indefinitely. He had supported Franklin D. Roosevelt because of the pledge in the Democratic party's 1932 platform that federal expenses would be cut by at least 25 per cent.

It was over this issue that he later had differences with the administration, but he always felt he was one of the original new dealers and that it was not he but others who had strayed from the party platform.

But why was Senator Byrd so absorbed in the subject of sound fiscal policy? The fact is he was frustrated as a young man due to the financial difficulties of his parents and he couldn't afford to go to college. He took over, at the age of 15, the weekly newspaper established by his family which had been plunged into bankruptcy. As he gradually met with success, he bought a tract of land and became one of the largest growers of apples in the world.

What Harry Byrd learned in trying to make ends meet produced an indelible impression on his mind, as so often happens with self-made men. It unquestionably had a lasting effect on the way he dealt with issues in his public career in later years.

Above all, Harry Byrd followed the commands of an ever-present conscience, irrespective of the temptations of politics. He never voted on any bill that could affect his own property. He didn't accept a cent of federal money for his farming operations and once had a technical amendment inserted in a law that would disqualify him from benefiting from a measure affecting certain types of securities he held.

He regarded public office as a sacred responsibility — a trusteeship which required an unwavering fidelity to the cause of fiscal as well as social responsibility.

Many of the theorists of today have never known what it means to borrow money from a bank or accept capital from investors to start and carry on a business, and then to meet these obligations. Senator Byrd thought of public funds in the same way, because he never forgot that individual citizens struggling for a livelihood paid out their hard-earned money in taxes every year with a blind faith that the governmental authorities would deal honestly with the citizens' earnings.

Harry Byrd was brought up in the school of practical experience — not just theory. He always had the ideals of a progressive but the common sense of a conservative who knows that, however honestly a man may operate his business, he is no less a bankrupt if he fails to pay back what he owes. The same concept was applied by Senator Byrd to the fundamentals of government finance.

But anybody who, like the late Virginia Senator, today dissents from the whimsical doctrines of expediency and insists instead on constitutional methods is called a "negativist." The speeches of Senator Byrd will long be remembered as a series of warnings on the biggest single issue that faces the American people today — how to keep the government from going "bankrupt."

(The foregoing was written at the time Harry Byrd left the United States Senate in November 1965. With his passing, it is presented now as a tribute to an American citizen who in his lifetime contributed much to his state and nation.)

Veteran Newspaperman Lewis Jester Dies

LEWIS T. JESTER

Lewis Turlington Jester, a veteran of 59 years as a Peninsula newspaperman and broadcaster, died about 6 p.m. Monday in his York County home after a lengthy illness. He was 73.

He worked 31 years as a newspaperman, moving from Daily Press reporter in 1913 to editor of The Daily Press, Inc., from 1931-43.

Mr. Jester subsequently formed news departments for WVEC radio and television and was consultant for the station's newsroom at the time of his death.

Mr. Jester's counsel was used as recently as Thursday in planning WVEC's handling of the news of Sen. Harry Byrd's death.

Mr. Jester was born July 14, 1893, near Jamestown. His parents were the late William Y. and Nattie Williams Jester.

He joined the newspaper staff in 1913 and was elected a member of the board of The Daily Press, Inc., in 1928. He served as a member of the board through 1932.

Mr. Jester was secretary for the board from 1929-1943 and served as editor of The Daily Press, Inc., in 1931-43.

He became associate editor of the Richmond Times-Dispatch after leaving the Peninsula newspaper. In 1952 he organized the WVEC radio news department and handled daily broadcasts of state and local news for 10 years.

He also organized the television news department for the station and for a time was news director for both radio and television. He retired in 1952 as senior vice president for radio news.

A veteran of World War I duty with the Navy, he was a charter member of Braxton-Perkins American Legion Post. He was a member of the board responsible for building the Newport News Public Library.

Jet Ace Jabara Accident Victim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Col. James Jabara, who shot down 15 MIG fighters in the Korean War and became the first jet ace in history, was killed Thursday night in an automobile accident at Delray Beach, Fla., the Pentagon said.

Jabara, 43, was en route from Homestead Air Force Base, in Florida, where he commanded the 31st Tactical Fighter Wing, to Myrtle Beach, S.C., where he was moving his family, a spokesman said.

The Air Force pilot, also an ace in World War II in Europe, was dead on arrival at a local hospital, according to the report received here. His daughter, Carol Anne, was reported to have been seriously injured.

Jabara shot down six Russian MIG 15s with an F86 Sabre jet over North Korea in 1950 and '51. In '53 he did another tour of duty and shot down nine more MIGs.

Mrs. H. L. Ferguson
Succumbs At Age 94

Mrs. Homer L. Ferguson Sr., long regarded as the First Lady of the Virginia Peninsula—died at 1:30 p.m. Sunday in her home at 20 Museum Drive, Newport News.

Though her health was too delicate as a child to permit regular classroom studies, Mrs. Ferguson had celebrated her 94th birthday Nov. 10.

Widow of a former president

MRS. HOMER L. FERGUSON

and chairman of the board of Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., she had achieved distinction in her own right through extensive civic and church activities spanning half a century.

'Touch Of Everything'

Her community involvement, she once conceded, included "a little touch of everything because I have been here so long."

Donald A. Holden, current president of the shipyard, described her Sunday as a "very highly esteemed person throughout this community. She accomplished a great deal in numerous endeavors, and all of her many associates will miss her presence very much."

Mrs. Ferguson was a charter director of the Girls Club and Girl Scouts in Newport News, served as organizing president of the Hampton Roads Garden Club, founder and first president of the Newport News Young Women's Christian Association. Elected to the board of directors of the Newport News Public Library in 1915 and named honorary president in 1959, she also served as chairman of the Women's Service League here during World War I and headed the Red Cross staff aides program in World War II.

It was during the latter conflict that she acted as sponsor for commissioning of the cruiser Newport News.

Mrs. Ferguson brought a special fervor to her role as chairman of the National Cathedral Association for the Episcopal Diocese of Southern Virginia.

She was present in 1898 for the dedication of the Peace Cross at Mount Saint Alban in Washington, D. C., and in 1907 for ceremonies at that site when the cornerstone was laid for the world's fifth largest cathedral.

In honor of her "faithful and inspirational leadership," a statue of St. Theresa of Avila was dedicated in 1965 at the cathedral. It had been sculpted by direction of a special diocesan committee.

Mrs. Ferguson was born in Eddyville, Ky., as Elise Anderson Skinner, the daughter of a Confederate Army captain.

Kentucky Survey

Her great-grandfather worked with George Rogers Clark on the original survey of the Kentucky territory, while her grandfather was governor of Ohio immediately after the Civil War. A great-uncle was Robert Anderson, commandant of Union forces during the bombardment of Fort Sumter, S. C.

She was married to Homer L. Ferguson after his graduation from the U. S. Naval Academy.

The Fergusons resided in Hampton for five years while the young Naval officer served as an inspector during construction of the battleships Kearsarge and Kentucky, launched amid national fanfare in 1896.

Named President

The couple later moved to Washington, returning when Ferguson left Naval service to become a superintendent at the shipyard. He was elevated to the presidency in 1915 after A. L. Hopkins, then president, went down on the Lusitania.

Ferguson served as president until 1946, then as board chairman until his death in 1953.

Their home at 57th and Huntington Ave., was visited by numerous dignitaries both foreign and domestic, including President William Howard Taft, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson and U. S. Sen. Harry F. Byrd Sr.

Gardening, Travel

In addition to her civic and church work, Mrs. Ferguson regarded gardening, travel, ornithology and needlepoint as her chief pursuits.

Two of her six children survive—William McLeod Ferguson, a Newport News attorney, and Mrs. Lyman S. Ayres of Indianapolis, Ind. There are also 10 grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

CHARLES WESLEY MILLS

We the Official Board of Zion Church wish to pay special tribute to Charles Wesley Mills who recently departed this life.

We are keenly aware of the years of service he gave to Zion Church as a teacher of youth in the church school; communion steward; church trustee and steward of the official board for a number of years. He also served on the Building Committee for the erection of the present Zion Church and gave untiringly of his time and talents in the service of the Lord. His loyalty to the church's ministry will serve as a moving spirit to guide others to Christ and truly exemplify the great love and concern he possessed for Christ's kingdom here on earth.

We extend to the members of his family our heartfelt love and concern in the loss of one of our faithful brothers.

Mrs. Cornick, 1967 Red Cross Head, Dies In Yorktown

YORKTOWN—Mrs. Henry T. Cornick, 57, Nelson St., Yorktown, executive secretary of the York County chapter of the American Red Cross, died in her home Tuesday morning, apparently from a fall.

York Deputy Sheriff Darrell Warren said Mrs. Cornick apparently fell backwards after opening a closet in the pantry of her home. It appeared she struck the back of her head on a sink, he said.

The body, he said, was sent to the assistant state medical examiners office in Norfolk for an autopsy to determine whether the cause of death was a heart attack, a stroke or the injury to the head.

Funeral arrangements will be made by the Amory Funeral Home in Grafton.

Warren said Mrs. Cornick's body was found by her husband at about 8:45 a.m. after he got out of bed.

Employed at the Yorktown Red Cross chapter house for about 17 years, Mrs. Cornick administered to more than 10 services offered by the chapter.

Services administered included home service, disaster, water safety, first aid, camps and hospitals, blood program, Junior Red Cross, nursing service, sick loan service, office of volunteers and orientation courses.

In the water safety program alone, more than 600 adults and children were instructed in swimming classes.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by three children, Henry T. Cornick Jr. of Seaford, Jane Scott Cornick of Boston, Mass., and Robert Bruce Cornick, a student at the University of Richmond; and a brother, Col. August F. Penzold Jr., Marlbank Farms, Yorktown.

Victor P. Wilson Of Hampton, Ex-Virginia Solon, Dies At 65

Feb. 14, 1968

Victor P. Wilson, 65, a former state senator and member of the House of Delegates, died Wednesday afternoon en route to a local hospital.

First elected as a Hampton delegate to the General Assembly in 1949, he later served two terms in the Senate. He retired from public life in 1963. He lived at 1109 Lotus St., Hampton.

He was a vocal opponent of Byrd politics and devoted his public career to improving public schools and institutions of higher learning in Virginia.

Mr. Wilson sought higher teacher salaries and was instrumental in modernizing and improving the state's mental institutions. Throughout the 1950s and '60s, he fought for the development of port facilities in Hampton Roads.

Additionally, during his last campaign for public office, Wilson said he would strive to revise and rewrite our antiquated tax laws with results of bringing new industry and relieving our cities and counties, which are deeply in debt.

To promote the tourist trade and make the great advantages of our natural resources known to the people of our country and to attract industry to our favorable conditions and climate.

To give the people the right to vote to repeal the poll tax as a right to vote and to increase the workman's compensation laws by paying a living wage to any worker who is hurt or disabled on the job."

A past president of the Hampton Bar Association and a member of the Virginia State Bar, he was partner of Wilson and Wilson Attorneys-at-Law at the time of death.

During World War II, Mr. Wilson was appointed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt as a United States Government Appeal Agent for Hampton.

He was also a delegate to the National Democratic Convention in 1956 and was one of the most vociferous advocates of terminating the Bay Bridge Tunnel in Hampton.

He was voted All-Southern end, while a student at Virginia Polytechnic Institute in 1922. Mr. Wilson later received his undergraduate and law degrees from the University of Virginia.

Other affiliations included membership in Hampton Lions Club, Loyal Order of the Moose, Tuberculosis Association, Leukemia Society, Buckroe Beach Volunteer Fire Department, Eagles and Central Methodist Church.

Mr. Wilson was a past exalted ruler of Hampton Elks No. 866, director of the Peninsula Society for Crippled Children and director of the Northampton Recreation Association.

A member of the Peninsula

Association for Mental Health, he was a past director of the National Association for Mental Health and served on the building committees of Dixie and Mary Immaculate hospitals.

While a member of the Senate, he served as chairman of the George Wythe Memorial Association.

Survivors include one sister, Mrs. Charlotte Wilson Hudgins; a niece, Miss Libbie Wilson, and two nephews, Taylor C. Wilson and T. H. Wilson, all of Hampton.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

J. Eldon James, chairman of the Hampton Democratic Executive Committee and past National Commander of the American Legion, described the death of Wilson as great loss to the community.

"During the many years as an active force in the political life of Hampton and the old Elizabeth City County, he never hesitated to fight for that which he considered just. Like his supporters, those who opposed him always respected the vigor of his advocacy for the many causes he supported," he said.

E. Ralph James, former member of the General Assembly who served for more than seven terms with Mr. Wilson, said he was distressed to learn of the former solon's death.

"I am sure the community has lost one who has been a leader and active in community and state affairs and we will miss him," he said.

Rep. Thomas N. Downing said, "I learned with great sadness tonight of the death of my good, old friend Victor Wilson. He was especially dear to me in that he was one of the first people to urge me to run for public office."

"I was most grateful for his support in all of my public career and especially for his wise counsel which he offered as freely to me as he offered himself to the Commonwealth of Virginia. His was a great progressive voice. His loyalty knew no bounds and his dedication to the good of his fellowman will be greatly missed by all who were privileged to be his friends."

State Sen. Hunter B. Andrews said, "News of Victor Wilson's death came as terrible shock to those of us who served in the General Assembly, which he loved and in which he served."

"Victor gave many of us our introduction to politics, and the lessons he taught will continue to prove valuable as long as we may serve. Hampton will miss him greatly," he said.

Del. Richard M. Bagley said, "I learned of Vic Wilson's death tonight at a gathering of the delegation from the First Congressional District."

"We were all greatly touched because we know how much Virginia and especially Hampton meant to him. He was a good and true friend whom I shall miss greatly," he said.

Del. John B. Gray said, "Vic Wilson was one of the most loyal men with whom I have ever been associated. He was one man who gave his all to whatever he undertook. The loss is a great one to Hampton and to Virginia."

Mayor Ann Kilgore when notified of Mr. Wilson's death said, "Victor Wilson always had a deep interest in and love for the City of Hampton."

"He was a student of government. He had a keen mind and a compassionate heart and stood ready to serve our citizens at any time and under any circumstances."

"He will be truly missed by city officials and his friends," she said.

Dwight David Eisenhower

March 29

1969 (An Appreciation)

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — "To mold, to balance and to integrate" the forces contending, designedly or inherently, to undermine "the principles of our democratic system"—this was the lifetime mission of Dwight D. Eisenhower as he saw and practiced it. In many conversations with him, before, during and after his presidency, his sense of this mission invariably emerged. So it was wholly in character that his fixed dedication dominated Eisenhower's farewell presidential address to the American people on the night of Jan. 17, 1961. To schoolboys the best-known examples of state papers in this particular field are Washington's farewell address and the peroration of Lincoln's second inaugural. Indeed, they are the only ones with which schoolboys are familiar.

But as time recedes into eternity from the day of Eisenhower's death on March 28, 1969, the extraordinary combination in his Farewell—stress on his lifetime principle, and foresight of the threat to which it was being increasingly exposed—will establish this document also as fundamental to the basic education of Americans.

Cited Two Forces

He cited two forces in particular as comprising the threat to "the very structure of our society": A military-industrial complex and a "scientific-technological elite," both born of another new threat. And this he described as "a hostile ideology — global in scope, atheistic in character, ruthless in purpose and insidious in method." In other words, the Bolshevik design to impose Communism by force throughout the world.

If there were room here for additional extracts, they could only serve to support the point I am seeking to make. It is that not only does Eisenhower's Farewell reflect and maintain the purpose which guided him as president, as soldier and as a private person: the address refutes the caricature drawn of Eisenhower by variously motivated critics as a chief magistrate who let his subordinates do the governing because he had no original ideas, no passion for the advancement of humanity and a distaste for mental concentration on the problems confronting the president as steward of the nation.

Reputation Important

But the reputation of this appraisal has much more material to produce than the Eisenhower speech of Jan. 17, 1961. The records of the crisis meetings of the National Security Council, 1953-1961, are now under seal at Camp Ritchie, Maryland. When these papers are released for publication, they will, according to a common judgment expressed to me by participants in the discussions, reveal that the president made all the final decisions and firmly and fully enforced them; that his reliance on the staff system stopped at the deciding-line; that his grasp of complex issues was profound; and that his expositions of his own views were both forceful and clear.

But, since a large part of the public incessantly read the contrary in its press, and heard it on the air and in the political arena, what were the sources of a popular sentiment that, the political professionals generally agreed, would have elected Eisenhower to a third term if he had been legally eligible—and willing?

Victorious Commander

He had been a victorious American commander of the largest armies ever assembled. But victory in war, even a war that preserved the union, did not save Ulysses S. Grant from the political obloquy in which his presidency ended.

The source of Eisenhower's unbroken hold on the American people was probably that few could see, hear or talk with him and not come away with the conviction that here was a good man, an uncomplicated man, unselfish in his patriotism — the kind of man who has risen from simple beginnings to the possession of great power without impairment of integrity.

This certainly was my feeling in conversations, intimate and otherwise, in Paris, in the Pentagon, at the White House and thereafter. And, aside from the foresight, perception and passion for the traditional concept of "the democratic system," in the farewell address, Eisenhower was the kind of president the nation wanted in his time, a time that may come again.
